CLEARING LAND OF STUMPS IN BRECKINRIDGE COUNTY

BORING THE HOLE UNDER THE STUMP

It is needless to tell you the advantages of clearing land.

The stump covered site of a former piece of woods, is, as you know, new, rich soil that needs no fertilizer.

You also know that pulling stumps with a machine is the hardest kind of work—liable to injure seriously your horses, and certain to require a lot of work to get rid of the stumps after pulling.

Then too, it leaves the field full of holes, that must be filled; and plowing the hard packed soil around old roots is no joke.

If instead of pulling the stumps, you burn them out, the intense heat required destroys the chief fertile elements of the soil all round the fire. After all your hard work you will leave a burned field instead of new, fertile soil.

You can dynamite all those stumps for about one-third the cost of pulling and chopping them up.

The blast splits up the stump into firewood, removes all the dirt, breaks all the main roots, and loosens the soil for yards around.

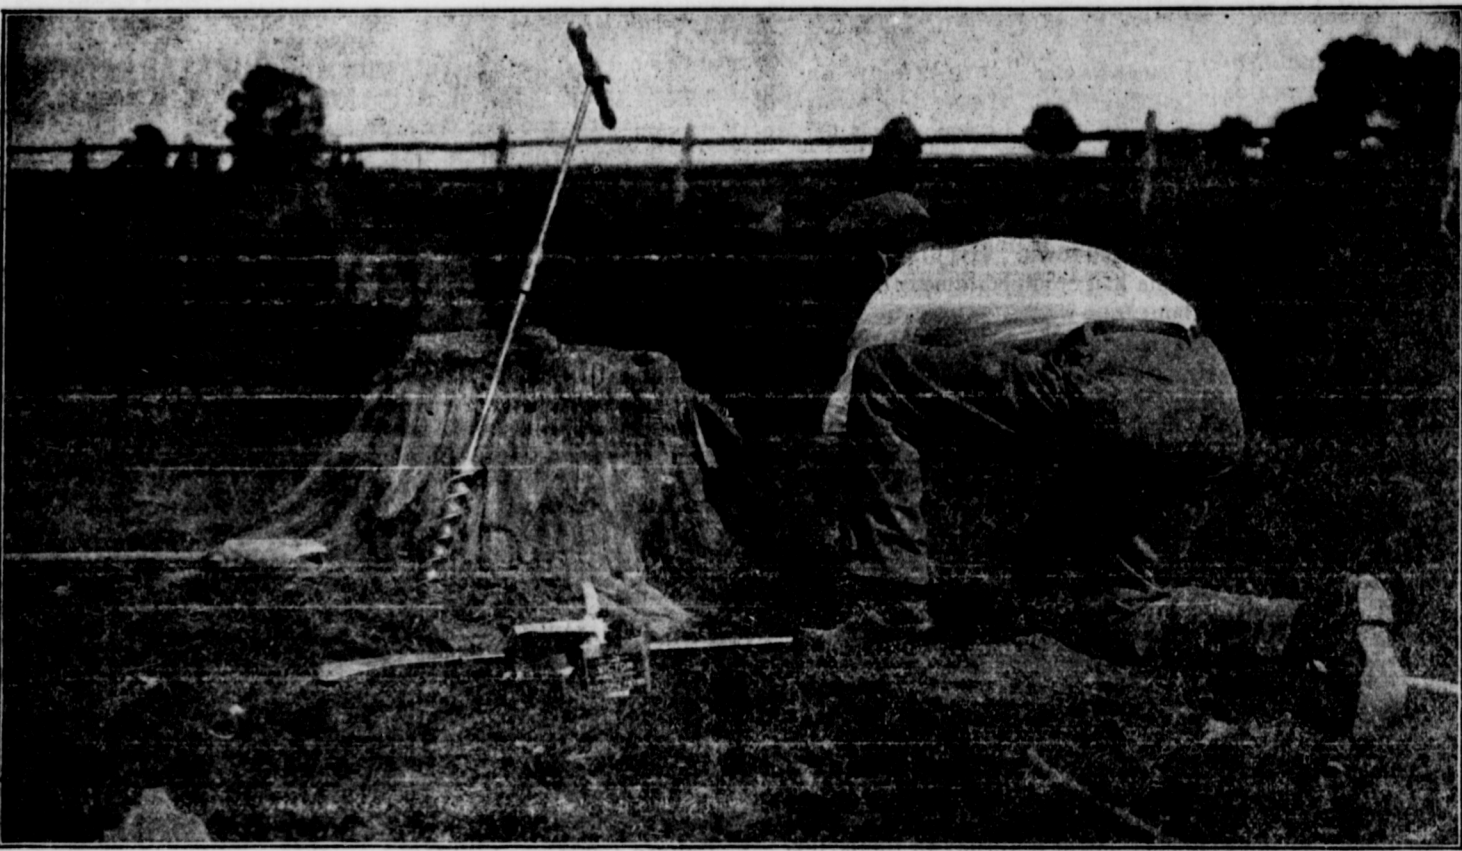

You can blast fifty stumps in the time it would take to pull and chop up one or two.

One man can do all the work, if necessary.

After all the stumps are all blasted out, you will have a new, rich field, and easy to cultivate, requiring no fertilizer to yield bumper crops.

If you want to remove a whole tree, "Red Cross" Dynamite will lift it bodily out of the ground, and it will usually fall with the wind. When this is done, there is no stump left to remove.

Boulders, which you are now obliged to plow around, can be broken up into easily handled blocks by a single blast. Continued next week.

The Man Who Hated Women.

He hated women—any woman—all women were the same to him. He hated them individually and collectively—and why? Because somewhere in his life there had been a girl whom he had loved and she had led him to believe that she loved him, but she had married the other man and had broken—not his heart but his faith in women.

He would have nothing to do with them—he was not exactly afraid of them (or so he claimed) but he knew that he was immune from their feminine charms and since he was so absolutely sure of this fact, he did not think it necessary to be with them to prove it to the world at large. Perhaps if he had let himself be with them he would have found that there were many others who could take the place of the girl who threw him down.

When a woman came in sight his head went up a trifle higher, and he refused to have anything to do with her. He would not talk to her—he would pay no attention to her when she tried to address him, and the woman went on her way.

But there were many women and many meetings—and after many times of sullenness it became a habit and he brought upon himself the name of Grouch. He was miserable—for what man would not be if he hated ALL women. But he continued to exist in this womanless land of his own.

Think what unhappiness he let one woman cause, and one who no doubt had forgotten his existence. But it was ever thus—men judge all by one, which is most unfair. To lose faith in one woman and mistrust all is a grave mistake on the part of any man.—Evansville News.

Most Successful Corn Grower.

The most successful boy corn raiser in Kentucky for 1911 was I. V. Hooper, a seventeen year old boy of Union county. He received, as a premium, a silver cup valued at $50.00. He produced twenty nine barrels of corn on a single acre of ground. His net profits on the acre was more than $60.00, the price of the corn having been put at 65 cents a bushel.—Hartford Herald.

OFFICIAL CALL FOR DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION

Issued By Norman Mack And Urey Woodson--Basis of Representation On Census
Of 1910.

ALLOTMENT OF DELEGATES.

Buffalo, Jan. 18.—The official call for the Democratic National Convention to be held at Baltimore on June 23 was issued by Norman E. Mack, Chairman, and Urey Woodson, secretary of the Democratic National Committee, today. The basis of representation and the method of naming delegates is outlined as follows:

"Delegates and alternates from each State in the Union shall be chosen to the number of two delegates for every senator and two delegates for every representative from the States respectively in the Congress of the United States under the congressional reapportionment of districts based upon the census of 1910. The district of Columbia, Alaska, the Philippines, Hawaii and Porto Rico and each allotted six delegates.

"In the choice of delegates and alternates the Democratic State or Territorial committees may, if not otherwise directed by the law of such States or territories, provided for the direct election of such delegates or alternates, if in the opinion of the respective committees it is deemed desirable and possible to do so with proper and sufficient safeguards. Where such provision is not made, and where the State laws do not provide specifically the manner of such choice, then the delegates and alternates to the said national convention shall be chosen in the manner that governed the choice of delegates to the last Democratic National Convention."

"The Saturday Shirt."

Not long ago a spritely young man went to Fraize's store and asked for "a Saturday shirt". After the young lady in the men's furnishing department had looked in vain for the garment she said to the particular customer: "Will you please give me some idea as to the style of this shirt?" He answered somewhat timidly: "No style to it. My everyday shirt isn't good enough and my Sunday shirt is too good, so I want a shirt to wear to town on Saturday. Now, do you know what is a Saturday shirt?"

RECORD OF A GREAT MEDICINE

Doctors Could Not Help Mrs.
Templeton—Regained
Health through Lydia E.
Pinkham's Compound.

Hooper, Nebraska.—"I am very glad to tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped me. For five years I suffered from female troubles so I was scarcely able to do my work. I took doctors' medicines and used local treatments but was not helped. I had such awful bearing down pains and my back was so weak I could hardly walk and could not ride. I often had to sit up nights to sleep and my friends thought I could not live long. At my request my husband got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I commenced to take it. By the time I had taken the seventh bottle my health had returned and I began doing my washing and was a well woman. At one time for three weeks I did all the work for eighteen boarders with no signs of my old trouble returning. Many have taken your medicine after seeing what it did for me. I would not take $1000 and be where I was. You have my permission to use my name if it will aid anyone."—Mrs. SUSIE TEMPLETON, Hooper, Nebraska.

The Pinkham record is a proud and peerless one. It is a record of constant victory over the obstinate ills of woman—ills that deal out despair. It is an established fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has restored health to thousands of such suffering women. Why don't you try it if you need such a medicine?

The passages of the kidney secretions were painful and my feet became so badly swollen that I was unable to put my shoes on. There was a dull ache in the small of my back, which extended into my head, and although I tried a number of remedies, I was unable to find relief. ## COUNTRY PRESS FREE FROM SCANDALS.

The stream of domestic crime and scandal with which the newspapers of the larger cities have been flooded recently, making them unfit reading for the home, has called attention rather sharply to the difference between the metropolitan sheet, the editors and reporters which are unknown to a great majority of their readers, and the country weekly, with which the personality of its editor is inseparable in the minds of his patrons.

The country weekly is, above all, a clean sheet, fit to be treated as a member of the household, and it is edited with a view of presenting the news which its readers most desire to read and of eliminating the stuff which is not fit to spread before people who desire a mental feast that can be digested with a clear conscience.

The city dailies attempt to justify their course by the claim that they are printing the stuff which the people want. No doubt there is a large number in every urban center to whom crime and scandal appeal, and it is this delectable class that the metropolitan sheet seeks to please and attract. The country readers, to their credit, would be utterly pleased if much of the filth is eliminated from their daily visit. News can be given in a clean way, though of ill smelling origin, any salacious details can be cut out if a clean paper is desired by an editor.

The country editor not only edits out much objectionable matter, it suppresses reports of misdeeds which would cause innocent people distress. He does this out of consideration for people whom he loves and because no good purpose could be served by the publication of the objectionable reports. His favors are extended to rich and poor alike, often without apparent appreciation. Indeed, the complimentary expressions which he prints relative to his readers are unheard of by the newspaper man, though he is just human enough to crave thankfulness like other people, but let him make a slip and say something which arouses resentment, even though innocently, and he is made to wish himself in some other occupation.

The country press is no small contribution to the clean current literature of the nation, and the local paper deserves the subscription and support of every household. — American Press.

COURTESY—"LET IT SPREAD ITSELF AROUND YOU."

The traffic department of the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis Railway Company is now circulating among its employees an article on courtesy. "Read it and let it spread itself around you," are the appealing words on the front page of the pamphlet. A great deal has been written of courtesy on the part of the employee to the public, how little do we hear of courtesy from the public to the employee? The indifference of many employees is sometimes very trying to the patrons, but if the patrons would be more patient with the men and women who serve the public constantly, we think the atmosphere everywhere would be happier and cheerier. Be considerate in asking questions and small favors of employees. You say it is their work to serve the public. Remember that they do serve hundreds of people in little ways from sun up to sun down and they are human and get tired just like you do in your home or office. The outside is all new to you; it hasn't become the same old chain of happenings, you are in the midst of a new soul and body of the passing throng. Just be patient, be courteous, be kind and forgiving of the man, woman, girl or boy who comes into the bustle and battle with the public in sunshine or rain. Let courtesy proceed to the Court House door every personality will draw courtesy from others.

WILSON-HARVEY INCIDENT.

Last week we were for Wilson. This week we are for Woodrow Wilson and the Wilson-Harvey incident has not shaken our faith in this man whom we want nominated the Democratic candidate for President and to be elected the Chief Executive of our country. We think it was frankness and not base ingratitude on the part of Mr. Wilson in telling Col. Harvey what he thought of the support given to him by Harper's Weekly. Col. Harvey must have felt like a country editor does when an old subscriber stops his paper. We all like loyalty in a friend, we want to be appreciated and Col. Harvey is human like the rest of us—we like everything better than frankness when it hits us. He, of course, was disappointed in the frank answer of Woodrow Wilson—just as a country editor is when the old friend says: "Stop my paper." We are disappointed in Col. Harvey, the editor of Harper's Weekly, that he is not big enough in mind and heart, to see Wilson's veracity, to appreciate a man who has stability and tell the truth instead of a polite, pleasing lie that would mean more than sugar on his bread.

PAPER BAG COOKING.

The paper bag cooking has created a furor throughout the country. Wherever it has been given attention it has won hosts of followers. Many advantages are claimed for this new cooking method which will be explained by a series of articles that we will run in the Breckenridge News. The kitchen and the cook stove, of most importance to the home, are usually the last equipments to be given consideration. Realizing what the cook question means and the horror of dish washing to the average house-keeper, we have taken pains to get the information available about the paper bag cooking for our readers, who are the home-makers.

Sherman Ball says of the Harvey-Wilson-Watterson affair, that Mr. Wilson was right from one stand-point, but not from the stand-point of a politician. He was too plain, and pointed in his answer not enough policy for a politician. "He should have smiled and got ten out of it in a more graceful way," said Mr. Ball.

The truth of the matter is, that Mr. Wilson's strength with the people, lays in his open, straight forward way of doing and saying things. He believes in telling the truth in politics as well as in other things. The people have had enough of shams and falsehoods in politics. They are disgusted with the old ways—they want service. This is Mr. Wilson's idea too. He sees and thinks as the people do. He knows what they want, and is one of them, and is with them. When the truth is demanded he stands up and tells the truth, no matter who it hurts, a big politician or a little one.

According to some late developments in New York press, it is evidently the intention of some of the leading politicians of the country to try to put Woodrow Wilson out of the race for the Democratic nomination for President. But it will hardly have the desired effect, especially with those who are acquainted with Mr. Wilson's political record. The late controversy between Mr. Harvey and Col. Watterson and the exposure of what took place in a private conference, will not have any effect with the Democrats who are favorable to the candidacy of Mr. Wilson. Kentucky undoubtedly stands for Mr. Wilson, and the designing politicians can hardly turn the tide against him in this state.

"He comes up smiling"—just this without any explanation was running for days in different newspapers and our curiosity was aroused to the highest pitch. "Who is he who comes up smiling? Why does he come up smiling? When does he come up smiling and where?" These and a thousand and one questions came to us every day until we got to coming up smiling ourselves. We have learned it is a title of a new book and a pretty good one to remember even if you don't read it. No man is so splendid as he who comes up smiling always—under all circumstances! Who of us can do it?

We expect to have a brilliant flower garden next summer as we have received some of the Candytuft, Chinese pink and Calendula government seed sent out by W. O. Bradley.

What the tax payers of Kentucky want is a tax law based on scientific methods, that is equally just to the capitalist, the farmer and the wage earner.

Speaker McDermott is enforcing some of Woodrow Wilson's rules of government in the Kentucky Senate.

The trouble with most farmers is, that they are ashamed of their job.

Our school is still growing—with more to follow—when all concerned get the spirit of enthusiasm awakened it is no trouble to succeed. No teacher can succeed without the co-operation—not only of students but of patrons and citizens of the community in which he is laboring. The people of our little "Burg" realizing something of the worth of their children and also of the older ones who might be seeking intellectual advancement are rallying loyally to the assistance of the school, throwing wide their doors to those who desire board, giving home treatment at cost, not profit prices, for the advancement of their own and their neighbors young folks. Such co-operation is like "Bread cast upon the waters" which will return an hundred fold in future.

Legend of the Three-Handled Loving Cup

The Late Lord Lyons, British Ambassador at Paris, used to relate the following history of "The Three-Handled Loving-cup":

King Henry of Navarre (Henry IV of France) while hunting became separated from his companions, and feeling thirsty, called at a wayside inn for a cup of wine.

While riding home he bethought him that a two-handled cup would prevent a recurrence of this. So His Majesty had a two handled cup made at the royal potteries and sent it to the inn. On his next visit he called again for wine when, to his astonishment, the maid (having received instructions from her mistress to be very careful of the "King's Cup") presented it to him, holding it herself by each of its handles. At once the happy idea struck the King of a cup with three handles, which was acted upon, as His Majesty quaintly remarked: "Surely out of three handles I shall be able to get one."

Hence, "The Three-handled Loving-cup."

CHAPTER XVII.

AN OFFER OF MARRIAGE.

"But where was she during the nor'wester?" Sheldon asked. "At Langa-Langa. Ran up there as it was coming on and laid there the whole week and traded for grub with the niggers. When we got to Tulagi there she was waiting for us and scrapping with Burnett. I tell you, Mr. Sheldon, she's a wonder, that girl, a perfect woman."

Munster refilled his glass, and while Sheldon glanced across at Joan's house, anxious for her coming, Sparrowhawk took up the tale.

"Gitty! She's the gristliest thing, man or woman, that ever blew into the Solomons. You should have seen Poonga-Poonga the morning we arrived—snickers popping on the beach and in the mangroves, war drums booming in the bush and signal smokes rising everywhere. 'It's all up,' says Captain Munster. 'Up your granny,' she says to him. Sparrowhawk went on."

"Why, we haven't arrived yet, much less got started. Wait till the anchor's down before you get a word in."

"That's what she said to me," Munster proclaimed. "And of course it made me mad, so that I didn't care what happened. We tried to send a boat ashore for a powder, but it was ed upon. 'What we want,' says Lackland, 'is a hostage. I'm going ashore tonight to fetch Kina-Kina herself on board, and I'm not asking for a game to go with me, for I've every man's word arranged for."

"I'm taking my sailors with me, one white man. Of course I'm a white man," I said, for by that time I was mad. "Of course you're a white man. You'll have charge of the boat. Curtis stands by the anchor. Fowler goes with me. Brahms takes charge of the Philiberty and Sparrowhawk of the Emily. And we start at 1 o'clock."

"My word, it was a tough job lying there in the covering boat. I never thought doing nothing could be such hard work. We stopped about fifty fathoms off and watched the other boat go in."

"Of course there was a row. It had to come, and I knew it, but it startled me just the same. I never heard such screeching and yelling in my life. The niggers must have just dived for the bush without looking to see what was going on. While her Tahitians let loose, shooting in the air and yelling to hurry 'em. And then I heard them coming on the mangroves and an oar on a gunwale and Miss Lackland laugh, and I knew everything was all right. We pulled on board without a shot being fired. And there was old Kina-Kina himself, being hoisted over the rail, shivering and shivering like an ape. The rest was easy. Kina-Kina's word was law, and he was scared to death. And we had him on board issuing proclamations all the time we were in Poonga-Poonga."

"It was a good move, too, in other words. She made Kina-Kina order his boat to return all the gear they'd taken from the Martha. She—here she is now."

It was with a shock of surprise that Sheldon greeted her appearance. The ready-made clothes from Sydney had transformed her. A simple skirt and shirt waist of some sort of wash goods set off her trim figure with a hint of elegant womanhood that was new to him. Brown slippers peeped out as she crossed the compound, and he caught a glimpse to the ankle of brown openwork stockings. Some one had been made many times by a woman by these mere extraneous trappings.

"I've opened up a new field," she said as she began pouring the coffee. "Kina-Kina will never forget me. And I can recruit there whenever I want. I saw Morgan at Guvutu. He was going to contract for a thousand dollars for 40 shillings per head. Did I tell you that I'd taken out a recruiting contract for the Martha? I did, and she can sign eighty boys every day."

Sheldon smiled a trifle bitterly to himself. The wonderful woman who had tripped across the compound in her Sydney clothes was gone, and he was listening to the boy come back from the bush.

"Well," Joan said, with a sigh, "I've seen you hustling American meth-odists to succeed and get somewhere. And here you are beginning your mud-dling again."

Joan stood beside Sheldon and sighed as she watched the Martha beating out to sea, old Kinross, brought over from Savo, in command.

"My, but she is a witch! Look at her eating up the water, and there's no wind to speak of. Honestly, if I'd known of the chance waiting for me at Guvutu when I bought her for less than $300 I'd never have gone partners with you. And in that case I'd be sailing her right now."

The justice of her contention came abruptly home to Sheldon.

"You make me feel like a big man who has robbed a small child of a lolly," he said, with sudden contrition.

"And the small child is crying for it," she looked at him, and he noted that her lip was slightly trembling and that her eyes were moist.

"But the small child won't cry any more for it," she was saying. "This is the last sob. But some day I'm going to sail the Martha again. I know it. I know it."

In reply, and quite without premeditation, his hand went out to hers, covering it as it lay on the railing. But he knew beyond the shadow of a doubt that it was the boy that returned the pressure he gave, the boy sorrowing over the lost toy. The thought chilled him.

"Never mind," he said. "You can go sailing on the Martha any time you please—recruiting on Malaita if you want to."

It was a great concession he was making, and he felt that he did it against his better judgment. Her reception of it was a surprise to him.

"With old Kinross in command?" she queried. "No, thank you. He'd drive me to suicide. I couldn't stand his handling of her. I'll never step on the Martha again unless it is to take charge of her. I'm a sailor, like my father, and he could never bear to see a vessel mishandled."

An hour later, just as they were riding out of the compound, Sheldon glanced at her sharply and noted her face mottling, even as he looked, and turning orange and green.

"It's the fever," she said. "I'll have to turn back."

By the time they were in the compound she was shivering and shaking, and he had to help her from her horse.

"Funny, isn't it?" she said, with chattering teeth. "Like seasickness—not serious, but horribly miserable while it lasts. I'm going to bed. Send Noa Noa and Viaburi to me. Tell Onifiri to make hot water. I'll be out of my head in fifteen minutes. But I'll be all right by evening. Short and sharp is the way it takes me."

Sheldon obeyed her instructions, rushed hot water bottles along to her and then sat on the veranda glancing across the compound to the grass house. Yes, he decided, the contention of every white man in the islands was right—the Solomons was no place for a woman.

He clapped his hands and Lalaperu came running.

"Here, you," he ordered; "go along barracks, bring 'm black fella Mary. Plenty too much, altogether."

A few minutes later the dozen black women of Berande were ranged before him. He looked them over critically, finally selecting one that was young, comely as such creatures went, and whose body bore no signs of skin disease.

"What name, you," he demanded. "Sangu?"

"Me Mahua," was the answer. "All right, you fella Mahua. You finish cook along boys. You stop along white Mary. All the time you stop along. You savvy?"

"Me savvy," she grunted and obeyed his gesture to go to the grass house immediately.

"What name?" he asked Viaburi, who had just come out of the grass house.

"Big fella sick," was the answer. "White fella Mary talk 'm too much all the time. Allee time talk 'm big fella schooner."

Sheldon nodded. He understood. It was the loss of the Martha that had brought on the fever. He lighted a cigarette, and in the curling smoke of it caught visions of his English mother and wondered if she would understand how her son could love a woman who cried because she could not be skipper of a schooner in the cannibal isles.

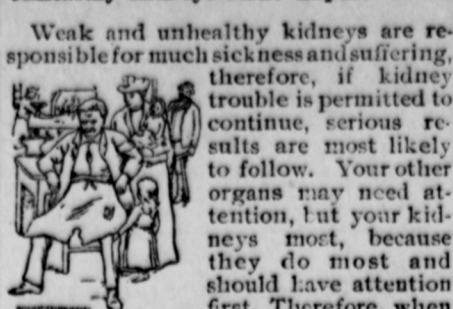

The most patient man in the world is prone to impatience in love, and Sheldon was in love.

But how to approach her? He divined the fanatical love of freedom in her, the deep seated antipathy for restraint of any sort. No man could ever put his arm around her and win her. She would flutter away like a frightened bird. Approach by contact—that, he realized, was the one thing he must never do. His hand clasp must be what it had always been—the hand clasp of hearty friendship, and nothing more. And then, one morning, quite fortuitously the opportunity came.

"My dearest wish is the success of Berande," Joan had just said apropos of a discussion about the cheapening of freights on copra to market.

"Do you mind if I tell you the dearest wish of my heart?" he promptly returned. "I long for it. I dream

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work. Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for much sickness and suffering, therefore, if kidney trouble is permitted to continue, serious results are most likely to follow. Your other organs may need attention, but your kidneys must, because they do most and should have attention first. Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root. A trial will convince you of its great merit.

The mild and immediate effect of Swamp-Root, the great kidney and bladder remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest because its remarkable health restoring properties have been proven in thousands of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best.

Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. about it. It is my dearest desire. It is for you some day when you are ready to be my wife."

She started back from him as if she had been stung. Her face went white on the instant, not from maidenly embarrassment, but from the anger which he could see flaming in her eyes.

"This taking for granted! This when I am ready!" she cried passionately. "Listen to me, Mr. Sheldon. I like you very well, though you are slow and a muddler, but I want you to understand once and for all that I did not come to the Solomons to get married. Getting married is not making my way in the world. It may do for some women, but not for me, thank you. When I sit down to talk over the freight on copra I don't care to have proposals of marriage sandwiched in. Besides—besides—"

Her voice broke for the moment, and when she went on there was a note of appeal in it that well nigh convicted him to himself of being a brute.

"Don't you see? It spoils everything. It makes the whole situation impossible—and I so loved our partnership and was proud of it. Don't you see? I can't go on being your partner if you make love to me. And I was so happy!"

Tears of disappointment were in her eyes, and she caught a swift sob in her throat.

"I warned you," he said gravely. "Such unusual situations between men and women cannot endure. I told you so at the beginning."

"Oh, yes; it is quite clear to me what you did. You took good care to warn me against every other man in the Solomons except yourself."

It was a blow in the face to Sheldon. He smarted with the truth of it, and at the same time he smarted with what he was convinced was the injustice of it. A gleam of triumph that flickered in her eye because of the hit she had made decided him.

"It is not so one sided as you seem to think it is," he began. "I was doing very nicely on Berande before you came. I did not want you to stay. I wasn't in love with you then. I wanted you to go to Sydney, to go back to Hawaii. But you insisted on staying. You virtually—"

He paused for a softer word than the one that had risen to his lips, and she took it away from him.

"Forced myself on you—that's what you meant to say," she cried, the flags of battle painting her cheeks. "Go ahead. Don't mind my feelings."

"All right. I won't," he said decisively, realizing that the discussion was in danger of becoming a vituperative, schoolboy argument. "You have insisted on being considered as a man. Consistency would demand that you talk like a man and like a man listen to man talk. And listen you shall. It is not your fault that this unpleasantness has arisen. I do not blame you for anything—remember that—and for the same reason you should not blame me for anything."

"You can't help being yourself. You can't help being a very desirable creature so far as I am concerned. You have made me want you. You didn't intend to; you didn't try to. You were so made, that is all. And I was so made that I was ripe to want you. But I can't help being myself. I can't by an effort of will cease from wanting you any more than you by an effort of will can make yourself undesirable to me."

"Oh, this desire, this want, want, want!" she broke in rebelliously. "I am not quite a fool. I understand some things. I really think it would be a good idea for me to marry Noa Noa or Adamu Adam or Lalaperu there or any black boy. Then I could give him orders and keep him penned away from me and men like you would leave me alone and not talk marriage and 'I want, I want.'"

Sheldon laughed in spite of himself and far from any genuine impulse to laugh.

"You are positively soulless," he said savagely.

"Because I've a soul that doesn't yearn for a man for master?" she took up the gauge. "Very well, then, I am soulless, and what are you going to do about it?"

"I am going to ask you why you look like a woman? Why you have the form of a woman, the lips of a woman, the wonderful hair of a woman? And I am going to answer because you are a woman, though the woman in you is asleep and that some day the woman will wake up."

"Heaven forbid!" she cried in such sudden and genuine dismay as to make him laugh and to bring a smile to her own lips against herself.

"I've got some more to say to you," Sheldon pursued. "I did try to protect you from every other man in the Solomons and from yourself as well. As for me, I didn't dream that danger lay in that quarter. So I failed to protect you from myself. I failed to protect you at all. You went your own wilful way just as though I didn't exist—wrecking schooners, recruiting on Malaita and sailing schooners, one lone, unprotected girl in the company of some of the worst scoundrels in the Solomons. I love you for that too. I love you for all of you, just as you are."

She made a move of distaste and raised a hand protestingly.

"Don't," he said. "You have no right to recoil from the mention of my love for you. Remember, this is a man talk. From the point of view of the talk, you are a man. The woman in you is only incidental, accidental and irrelevant. You've got to listen to the bald statement of fact, strange though it is, that I love you. You are better off and safer on Berande, in spite of the fact that I love you, than anywhere else in the Solomons. But I want you, as a final item of man talk, to remember from time to time that I love you and that it will be the dearest day of my life when you consent to marry me. I want you to think of it sometimes. And now we won't talk about it any more. As between men, there's my hand."

He held out his hand. She hesitated, then gripped it heartily and smiled through her tears.

"I wish"—she faltered, "I wish, instead of that black Mary, you'd given me somebody to swear for me."

And with this enigmatic utterance she turned away.

Berry Association Organized.

Floyds Knobs, Ind., Jan. 11.—At a recent meeting of the strawberry growers of Floyd and Clark counties, an association was formed under the name of the Crescent Hill Horticultural society. Thirty-five members were enrolled, representing 87 acres of strawberries, blackberries and raspberries. The 24 standard quart ventilated crates were adopted. There are 75 or 100 other growers in this district and it is believed most will adopt the new package. J. C. Hunt, Floyds Knobs, Ind., was elected secretary.

Another Large Sale Of Burley Tobacco.

The executive committee of the Burley Tobacco Society was in session at Lexington, Ky., January 10, and upon adjournment it was announced that the society had just sold to T. S. Kirk, the Cincinnati tobacco broker, 1,600,000 pounds of red tobacco, of the grades known as D. S. 1, 2, 3 and 4. It was to Mr. Kirk that the recent sales of 10,000,000 pounds of high grades and 800,000 pounds were sold, respectively.

The price of the sale was not given out. Mr. Kirk confirmed the sale, but said the price was necessarily private. It was reported when the 10,000,000 pounds were sold five or six weeks ago that Mr. Kirk was buying for the American Tobacco Company.

44 TAFT SUITS AGAINST TRUSTS

President Has Equaled Numerically Roosevelt's Record.

88 CASES IN LAST 21 YEARS

Pending Action Against the Steel Corporation Regarded as Most Important of All—Case of International Harvester Company.

President Taft has equaled the record of President Roosevelt's administrations for trust prosecutions under the Sherman law. The total number is forty-four. In Roosevelt's seven years eighteen bills in equity were filed, twenty-five indictments returned and one forfeiture proceeding begun. In the little less than three years of the Taft administration there have been twenty-two civil suits and a like number of indictments.

The Roosevelt record was equaled with the filing at Macon, Ga., of a civil suit against the so called naval stores trust and the returning of indictments against the alleged coaster brake trust at Buffalo.

From July 2, 1890, to July 1, 1911, there were eighty-eight cases brought under the Sherman act. These were divided:

President Harrison's administration—Four bills in equity and three indictments.

President Cleveland—Four bills in equity, two indictments and two informations for contempt.

President McKinley—Three bills in equity.

President Roosevelt—Eighteen bills in equity, twenty-five indictments and one forfeiture proceeding.

President Taft—Twenty-two bills in equity and twenty-two indictments.

The forty-four cases in the Roosevelt regime include the famous Northern Securities case, the suit to restrain the beef trust, two suits against the Federal Salt company, suit for the dissolution of the Jacksonville Wholesale Grocers' association, one to dissolve the General Paper company, one against Armour and other Chicago meat packers, two suits in the tobacco trust cases, one against the Terminal Railroad association of St. Louis, one to restrain the Otis Elevator company, one against the National Association of Retail Druggists, one against the American Ice company, one to dissolve the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, one to dissolve a combination among the anthracite coal carrying roads, one to prevent the operations of the powder trust, one against the Union Pacific Railroad company, charging a conspiracy in violation of the Sherman law; one against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company, alleging an attempt to combine under one common control the various steam and electric systems in New England, and a number of less important prosecutions.

Among the most far-reaching cases of the Roosevelt administration was the suit against the American Naval Stores company. This was declared to be a combination in restraint of trade in selling turpentine and its products. The defendants were convicted in the lower court. Fines aggregating $17,500 were assessed, and two defendants were sentenced to serve three months in jail. An appeal was taken to the United States supreme court and is on the docket awaiting oral arguments.

In its opinion on this case the court will for the first time construe the penal clauses of the Sherman act.

The most important of the prosecutions instituted during the Taft administration were the cases against the American Sugar Refining company, against the Imperial Window Glass company, two cases against the National Packing company and one against the Armour Packing company, a suit to restrain the Missouri Pacific and twenty-four other railroads from increasing freight rates, which produced an abandonment of the plan; a case alleging a combination by the General Electric company to control the business in incandescent electric lamps, one to break up the transatlantic steamship pool, one charging conspiracy against the officers of the Eastern States Retail Lumber Dealers' association, one against the lumber secretaries' bureau of information, covering twenty-three states from Pennsylvania to the Pacific coast, and other suits of less consequence.

Since July 1, 1911, a suit has been instituted for the dissolution of the United States Steel corporation, which surpasses in importance and aggregate of wealth represented the Standard Oil and tobacco cases. Evidence has been accumulated for the prosecution of the International Harvester company, but negotiations are pending for a voluntary readjustment of that concern's methods to avoid prosecution.

May Return Southern Flags.

If a bill introduced in the New York legislature by Assemblyman Cuvillier becomes a law a score of emblems will be returned to southern organizations. Among the flags there is half of the Confederate ensign which floated over the city hall at Richmond, Va., another containing thirteen stars and the names of Williamsburg and Seven Pines, taken from the Seventeenth volunteers of Virginia, and a third captured at Columbus, S. C., bearing the inscription: "Don't Stay at Home With Me. You Have Work to Do Go Ahead."

"SMITING THE LYRE"

Humorous Address Delivered by Mr. T. C. Underwood at the Powell Banquet, Louisville

Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen: Perhaps it was one of Dr. Powell's literary Sunday school scholars who boasted her papa's piety. "Every morning," she said, "I hear him pray, O, Lord, how I hate to get up!"

"Now, I wouldn't insist that in the matter of modesty I have the lowlyiolet looking like a Canadian thistle, and yet, to confess that rising here in this beautiful, new edifice, the shrinking cynosure of an ocular inquisition, and bathed in the great, white light, reflected from sundry scores of snowy evening shirts, filled me with emotion and trepidation, would, I dare say, be a work of supererogation. I pause just a moment to allow that last word to percolate.

My subject is 'Smiting the Lyre.' So, you see, with due regard to its various ramifications, this is a pretty large theme. There is plenty of room to move around in it oratorically. It doesn't cramp one like creeds and high collars; and, in one way or another, it affects us all. At the base of all human activity truth lies. I don't mean it prevaricates; perhaps 'rests' would be an apter term. Just as faith is the principle on which business is operated, so truth is the bond which holds together our entire social fabric. Destroy it and chaos is created, anarchy exists.

What I would discuss for a little while is 'popular fiction'—and authorship is universal. Why, do you suppose, will after-dinner speakers, present company excepted, feign astonishment that they have been placed on a program, when deep down in their heart of hearts, there lurks a consciousness that Demosthenes lived in vain, because he lived too soon to hear them orate?

Why will lawyers, with solemn mien, declare: 'Gentlemen of the jury, all our client wants is justice, simple justice; or, 'We expect, your honor, by half a dozen reputable witnesses fully to establish an alibi.' And are there any business men who escape jury service by having conveniently formed and expressed an opinion?

Why do politicians, when called on to speak most anywhere, lift their hands to high heaven and exclaim: 'This, ladies and gentlemen, is the proudest moment of my life.' Why will they write cards beginning, 'Owing to the earliest solicitation of many friends and voters. I have reluctantly consented to become a candidate.' And why, after the battle, will they impressively say: 'Believe me, fellow citizens, I do not mind my own defeat; I am only sorry of the defeat of our glorious policies'?

You young men, why will you fervently whisper: 'Ah, yes darling, I would love you just as much if your father hadn't a dollar in the world,' or, 'I wouldn't walk across the street to see a prizefight,' or, 'I'll pay that bill in just a day or two'?

And you brother benedicts, have you ever affirmed, 'Of course, honey, I mailed it on the way down town, or, 'Indeed, dear, I thought of you every minute I was in New York and longed to be back home, or, 'Say, Maria, after this act I've just gotta go out a few minutes to see a man,' or, 'Why conductor, he is under five years of age, all right'?

Et tu, Dr. Powell, do ministers always mean it when they remark: 'And now, brethren, just a word in conclusion'?

And there are others—folks, who hate the vile stuff, but the doctor says they need a tonic; those who dislike newspaper 'notoriety' of any sort; men whose motor cars cost them practically nothing for repairs; and surely those who remember weather that would have made the blizzard we have been experiencing resemble a balmy day in June.

WILSON FORCED TO TELL FACTS

to be of an opinion that perhaps the Weekly's constant and earnest support was militating somewhat against his prospects."

Wilson Believed To Contrary

The statement says that Gov. Wilson himself was decidedly of the contrary opinion, appreciating that Col. Harvey had prominently brought him to the front, and appreciating Col. Harvey's support, and feeling it valuable. He felt more bound, however, by most sacred ties of friendship and gratitude, it is said, which, rather than break or fail to observe, he would doubtless have withdrawn.

At this juncture the meeting in New York was held in the rooms of Col. Watterson. As Gov. Wilson arose to leave the little social gathering, Col. Harvey is accredited in the statement with saying:

"Gov. Wilson, I wish to ask you a question, and I expect from you a perfectly frank answer. 'Do you believe that the booming nature of my articles in Harper's Weekly is injuring your cause'?"

"Gov. Wilson, thus appealed to, was greatly embarrassed. His appreciation, his friendship and his individual opinion, all cried out loudly to him to say no, but Col. Harvey had demanded perfect frankness to him as an undoubted friend.

Gov. Wilson's Situation

"Picture the situation—there sat the three leaders considering what was advisable to do or to omit, and so, in perfect frankness but doubtless with extreme and painful embarrassment, Gov. Wilson told them what he thought from what he could learn, was the impression being created by the intensity of his friendly editorials. Col. Harvey then said: 'Well, I'll have to put on the soft pedal.' The position of Gov. Wilson, alive as he is to the obligations of friendship, was a cruel one, but among friends, and particularly political friends, steps of friends which may be of questionable wisdom are considered, as well as what is being done by opponents.

All parties parted in apparent perfect cordiality. Col. Harvey may have been then disappointed, and perhaps, wounded by the reply. Thinking over the matter since has evidently tended to increase this feeling.

HAS REVOLUTIONIZED COOKING

Famous English Chef Who Worked Out and Perfected Popular System of Paper Bag Cooking.

Women readers of this paper will be interested to learn that we have arranged to publish a series of articles on the famous Soyer system of paper bag cooking with recipes that have been carefully worked out by M. Soyer and Martha McCulloch Williams, the well known American cooking expert. The system of paper bag cooking, once understood, has been eagerly adopted by housewives and cooks all over the country.

Some months ago M. Nicholas Soyer, chef of Brooks' Club, London—himself one of the world's most noted living chefs, and grandson of that Soyer, "the immortal Alexis," who has been called the gastronomic regenerator of the Nineteenth Century—worked out and perfected a system of cooking in paper bags.

After years of study and effort he did this—and then he told of his system and its advantages over the old pot and kettle method.

M. Soyer's system of paper bag cookery is unquestionably fast revolutionizing household cooking in England, for a thousand years noted for its ultra conservatism. All classes of housewives are hailing it with delight; and, to cap the climax of praise which has risen about M. Soyer's ears, his fellow chefs have pronounced his paper bag system of cooking a practical success in every way, and have adopted it for much of their cooking.

Don't be a Tumbledown Take the Farm Journal

MANY a farmer will tell you he never knew how much bigger crops he could raise until FARM JOURNAL put it into his head to work more with his brains.

This great little paper is always nudging farmers up to make more money. Pleasant but persistent, it works at you year after year to raise larger crops, finer horses and cows, heavier hogs, bigger apples and potatoes, and shows you just HOW to do it.

FARM JOURNAL ("cream, not skim-milk") is 34 years old, and has over 750,000 subscribers, more than any other farm paper published. Its four million readers (known as "Our Folks") are the most intelligent and prosperous country people in the world, and are always saying FARM JOURNAL helped to make them so. It is clean, brief, "boiled down," full of practical wisdom, gumption, fun and sunshine. It believes in order, thrift, kindness, comfort, and happiness, and it has old Peter Tumbledown always ready to show how NOT to run a farm.

"Our Folks" have comfortable homes, modern buildings and machinery, tight roofs and fences, gates that swing free, sound horses, well-dressed and happy wives and children, and money in bank. Their potatoes are the largest, their milk tests the highest, their hogs weigh most, their fruit brings the best prices. Live farmers everywhere find this out, and they want the FARM JOURNAL.

Money-making Secrets.

These great illustrated booklets are all stories of success in farming, and they tell you the METHODS that won it.

Poultry Secrets is a unique collection of the secret methods and discoveries of successful poultrymen. It gives Felch's famous mating chart, suppressed for years, the Curtiss method of securing 90 per cent. more pullets than cockerels, Boyer's method of insuring fertility, with priceless secrets of mating, breeding, feed and feeding, how to produce winter eggs, and many others of great value long jealously guarded, now first published.

Horse Secrets exposes the methods of "bishops," "plugging," cocaine and gasoline doping, and other tricks of "ryps" and swindlers. It enables any one to tell an unsound horse. It also gives many valuable feeding, training, breeding and veterinary secrets.

Corn Secrets is the great NEW hand-book of Prof. Holden, the "Corn King." It tells how to get ten to twenty bushels more per acre of corn that is rich in protein and other valuable stock-feeding elements. Wonderful photographic pictures make every process plain.

The MILLION EGG-FARM tells how J. M. Foster, in the New Jersey pine-belt, makes over $18,000 a year, mainly from eggs. If you keep chickens, read about the "Rancho de Urti" and learn how Foster FEEDS his hens.

THE "BUTTER BOOK" tells of seven cows that produced half a ton of butter each per year (140 pounds is the average). An eye-opener for dairymen. Get it, weed out your poor cows, and turn your good ones into record-breakers.

GARDEN GOLD shows how to make your back-yard supply you with fresh vegetables and fruit, how to cut down your grocery bills, and get cash for your surplus produce. It tells when and how to plant, cultivate, harvest and market every kind.

DUCK DOLLARS tells of the great Weber duck-farm near Boston. Every year they sell over 40,000 ducklings at a net profit of 50 cents each. Tells why ducks pay them better than chickens, and just HOW they do everything.

THE COUNTY UNIT EXTENSION BILL

THERE ARE VARIOUS OPINIONS

The Republicans, after announcing their intention of standing as a unit to fight for a redistricting bill, seem to have been struck with panic when the reports rolled in from out in the state. The Republicans who had attended the caucus rushed into print to deny that they had favored any such program. They held several other caucuses before the election on the county level, but were defeated by a margin stated by a member of the Republican caucus to be "about the same" as the vote as they cast for the unit bill, this time in the caucus and not

The flood of bills in the senate is the surprise of the session. The house is expected to put in a big pile of new bills, covering everything from nine-foot sheets to appropriations for million dollars, but the senate, with but little more than one-third the number of members, is expected to go slow. But they haven't. They have been introducing bills at such a lively rate that they have almost as many as the house now, with the end not yet in sight. There are nearly 200 bills in the senate, with something over 200 in the house. The printer, unable to stand up under the flood, is catching the mischief, as usual, and the members have already begun to introduce resolutions of inquiry regarding their pet measures, which have been hung up. It would take the government printing office to get out the bills that have been put in thus far in a day less than a month.

Attention Farmers!

We Have a Number of Mules for Sale From 4 to 6 Years old at low Prices.

We invite your inspection before you make your purchase for this season. These mules are guaranteed to be sound and to work. There is a better feeling in the mule market, and as these mules are too thin in flesh to ship we are offering the farmers special inducements in order to get more room in our stables for fat mules. We offer no words of advice, but we feel that the quicker you come into possession of your teams for this Spring's work the less money you will have invested. We have a few young mares that would also be suitable for farm purposes, that we wish to sell or exchange for mules or geldings that are in a condition for the market. I am at Hardinsburg on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday.

Well, I guess that is as many laws as you care to pass for my benefit. I will be glad when you get home. It seems like one of our best friends was gone. Tell Dr. Meador to be a good boy while up there and not to eat any dirt. I heard from his wife a few days ago.

She is getting along very well.
